

COMING SOON – A QUESTION OF SOVEREIGNTY

By Candace Hill - Co-Executive Director, National Health Federation of Canada

The title alone begs for answers . . . what does this mean? Once again – this time in a patriotic and sentimental film – international award-winning Writer/Director Kevin P. Miller (Generation RX, We Become Silent) has exposed Canadians to a rare truth that up until now has been hidden from the eyes of most citizens by the mainstream media. In fact, the film's words, "these stories have never been told," sum up the years of continued abuse and fear Health Canada has wreaked upon our struggling natural health products industry by way of intimidation, fines, and gun-drawn raids.

But the film also exposes the ugly underbelly of the government and its slick way of stripping Canadians of their personal sovereignty and individual freedoms by hastily-passed laws and by supposed "free-trade" (actually managed-trade) deals and other international agreements.

As is dramatically shown, these attacks have taken place over many years. Just witness such unconstitutional legislation as is encompassed in Bills C-51, C-6, and their most-recent incarnation, Bill C-36, all of which have placed not only basic civil liberties and freedoms at risk but Canada's national sovereignty at risk as well. Moreover, entangling alliances with such groups as the World Trade Organization, the World Health Organization, Codex Alimentarius, the United States, and even multinational corporate interests have become so straightjacket restrictive that they literally threaten to make elected officials in Parliament irrelevant.

Above all, A Question Of Sovereignty highlights for the viewer this dramatic shift in the balance of power, which puts the Canadian nation and its people at a vital crossroad early in the 21st Century. Interestingly enough, some of Canada's past political giants may hold the answers to Canada's future.

This 24-minute documentary definitely educates us about our individual human rights. It is a must-watch and share with all of your health-freedom loving family and friends!
